Don't Occupy Wall Street Start a Business

The middle class in America is disappearing. This trend in the middle class is reflective of rising income inequality, and has been part and parcel of the national economy for the last 30 to 40 years. The solution? Entrepreneurship. Entrepreneurship drives everything; job creation, poverty alleviation, and national innovation. Working middle class Americans have got to stop depending on the government, big business, and financial institutions to take care of it. It is time to grab the bull by the horns and master the game of business!

I am Marye Dean, Esq @TheWallStreetLawyer.Com. I founded The Dean Law Firm in the financial capital of the world to help entrepreneurs do just that. When I started working in the financial district representing fortune 500 firms following the financial crisis I would occupy Wall Street on my lunch hour and go back to work the remaining 12 hours of the workday. Rather than beg big corp for the crumbs from their table I decided to start a big corp of my own and help other people do the same. My mission is economic equality through entrepreneurship. I fulfill my mission through The Dean Law Firm by building big business one client at a time. What does that mean to you? Exceptional legal services coupled with online digital products to help your business open sooner, operate easier and grow faster.
